Psychology is popular with young people in schools right across Europe!

Psychology teachers in many countries have national and regional associations, and the European Federation of Psychology Teachers' Associations – EFPTA – is the organisation that links us all together in a pan-European network.

Conference workshop

EFPTA exists to promote and support pre-university psychology education in Europe. We facilitate co-operation and networking, and in countries where there are psychology teachers but no association, we help them to establish one. We hold conferences and webinars for, and by, psychology educators, and we encourage student and teacher collaborative projects. We conduct research, and engage with other psychological and educational organisations in Europe and beyond, including the European Society for Psychology Learning and Teaching (ESPLAT), and the American Psychological Association (APA).

EFPTA Members are countries. In 2025-26, they are Belgium, Czechia, Denmark, England & Wales, Finland, Germany, Iceland, Netherlands, Norway, Scotland, Slovakia, Slovenia and Sweden. Most Members have a national association of psychology teachers. Each Member country is represented on the EFPTA Board, which normally meets in person twice a year, with online meetings in between. All members of Member country associations are entitled to attend Board meetings.

We organise a major conference every two years: in 2024 it was held in Helsinki, with around 100 psychology teachers & students from over a dozen countries. In 2026 the venue is Ljubljana – check the website for details! Find reports and presentations there too, from past conferences.
